The budget for 1907 grants the demand of the police department for twelve horses and the necessary equipment, stabling, provender, etc., for the mounted officers who will patrol the annexed tertiory. The committee did not, however, make provision for an increase of the force by twelve men, as asked by the department, but as a matter of fact the dozen additional positions would have to be created by ordinance before the Finance Committee could appropriate money for them.

Chief of Police Werner is confident that the provision for the mounted officers will enable the department to give ample protection to the east—and western territory recently added to the city. It is possible that a dozen additional officers may be provided for later by the Council, but the department is not known to be urging this at this time.

The Board of Police Commissioners will probably investigate the escape of James Weathers, a notorious criminal, charged with a folony, from the First Police Station recently. Weathers was released on straw bond by a magistrate, who recognized the man to appear in court next day without even knowing him by sight. In fact, it is said that Weathers impersonated another negro charged with drunkenness. The action of the board will, it is believed, be in the nature of a vindication of the officer. Mr. Thomason was seen last night, and in answer to the question as to whether or not he would enter the primary next fall as a candidate for the Senate, replied that he could not make the canvaas without serious loss of time and inconvenience to his business affairs, and that if he were elected he would be unable to give to the duties of the position the attention they deserved without too great a personal sacrifice.

Mr. Thomason also stated that in his independent Richmond had, in the past, been seriously handle appeal in the Legislature by not having, as its representatives in the House and Senate men of as long legislative experience as many of the counties, and that, in consequence, the county members were as a rule very much more influential than the representatives from this city. Mr. Thomason said that as he could not think of serving for more than one term, if he were elected, be thought that the interests of the city demanded that some man should be nominated who could be expected to serve more than one term, if the votura desired to retain him. For these reasons, he declared that he would not be a candidate.

The journeymen are determined in their fight for the closed shop, and the master plumbers are equally determined that their shops shall be open. There are fifty-odd journeymen plumbers in the city, and if they continue to strike until their demands are acceded to, there will probably be a lot of work left lagging.

The following statement was given to the master plumbers yesterday.

On November 12, 1996, the committee representing both sides entered into an agreement to submit their differences to a board of arbitration. The committees are also entered into a verbal agreement that the union men would return to work and would work in shops with non-union men until the arbitration board handed down its decision, at which time the non-union men would be laid off. This statement the master plumbers committee cannot truthfully deny. After the decision of the arbitration board was announced, the representatives of the union calied on the master plumbers' committee and requested them to sign an agreement accepting the arbitrators' decision, and were informed "that there was no master plumbers' association in existence, and that they had no authority to sign any papers."

This practically ignored the decision of the arbitrators, consequently the union decided that it would be necessary to deal with the individual shops. A copy of the decision was sent to each of the employing plumbers, with the request that it be signed, which they refused to do.

Therefore, in accordance with the union is willing to submit the question of whether or not the master plumbers' shall sign a copy of the decision as an agreement, but the question of work unless the bosses compiled with the union is willing to submit the question of so-called open shop cannot under any consideration he arbitrated. (Signed)

Important Meeting of Ashland Council To-

Council To-Night.

[Special to The Times-Dispate*]

ASHLAND, VA., March 6.—Considerable significance is attached to the meeting of the Town Council of Ashland tomorrow night on account of the important action which is to be taken by that body regarding the opening of streets here. One by one the little obstacles in the path of the town's progress are being removed. Ever since Ashland was incorporated the main street, known as Railroad Avenue, has been used by the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, thus rendering the street unsafe, as well as unpleasant, for driving on account of the trains which are yearly increasing in number. This is rendering the main street more and more objectionable for residential purposes. The demand for other streets paralleling the railroad has been most apparent. All of this has now crystalized through the efforts of Mr. E. I. C. Scott, former Mayor of the town, who has always taken a pronounced interest in the town and in any movement that will better Ashland, in a demand which is now being made on the Town Council to open two important streets—one cast and one west of Railroad Avenue, extending from the borough limits on the seuth to the borough limits on the seuth to the borough limits on the seuth to the borough limits on the market some excellent building lots, which are badly needed. The opening of these streets will also increase the town's revenue very materially, while it will also decrease the tax-rate, as it will result in the building of many new residences. DUAL NATURE OF CHRIST HIS TOPIC

Evangelist James Small Preaches on Humanity and Divinity of Saviour.

SERMON WAS ONE OF POWER

Preacher Declares That the Sinlessness of Christ Is Sufficient Proof of Divinity.

Large audiences continue to attend the evangelistic services at the Seventh Street Christian Church. Last night Rev. James Small preached a strong, forceful sermon on the subject "The Humanity and the Divinity of Jesus," abounding in apt, convincing and powerful illustrations.

The evangelist said, in part: "If Jesus was divine He knew it, and died upon a true testimony. If He was not divine he knew it, and died making a false claim. For again and again, we have Him claiming a power that no human being could claim if he was not more than a mere man.

"A man said to one who denied the divinity of Christ, "Could you say he that hath seen me hath seen the Father also," or 'I am the resurrection and the life? "Yes," said he, "Well, could you make anybody believe it?"

Reason, said Mr. Small, builds an argument on the predictions of the Old Testament.
"A gentleman brought a cardboard man."

"A gentleman brought a cardboard map of the United States home and asked his children to put it together. This they failed to do until they found there was a man on the other side, and in putting the man together they put the map together. So it is of the predictions. Put them together and fact will answer to fact, prediction to fulliment, and you have the man Christ Jesus in the Old as well as the New Testament. His biography was written before He was born.

"Reason builds an argument on His sinlessness. Convince me that Jesus was sinless and you have convinced me of His divinity. Sinlessness is supernatural, His divinity. Sinlessness is supernatural.

His perfection proves His delty. Reason builds an argument on His power. Did you ever think of how much power there is in the earth? There is the power of the wind. Do you know anybody who can control that? There is the power of can control that? There is the power of the waves. Do you know anybody who can control them?

"There are the powers of nature, the heaving of the tides, the swelling of the seeds in the earth, the mighty upspringing that clothes the field with grass. There is the power of the clouds. There is the power of heat, by which the strongest iron is made to melt. Thore is the power which pours down floods from the clouds. Why, an inch of water falling on a square mile means some 69,000 tons, and all that power poured out so gently that we do not notice it. We call it a shower. Think of the millions of on a square mile means some 60,000 tons, and all that power poured out so gently that we do not notice it. We call it a shower. Think of the millions of glowing orbs that flame through the sky. Think of this mighly world, rolling in its great orbit. Think of the sun, sweeping on in its eternal pathway. Think of the power that moves these things. Some people do not understand how the sun was made to stand still. Well, if you tell me what keeps it going, I will tell you how it was made to stand still."

Then Mr. Small went on to show Christ's present power. His power to make friends, he said, was wonderful. He has 450,000,000 friends. Many of them would die for Him in five minutes. How does it come He has so many and you have so few? How could Jesus be merely a carpenter? He hus power to be remembered on the earth. He has power to be obeyed. He has power in law courts and in wills and in governments.

If Jesus is not the Redeemer of men, promised by the living God to Jew and Gentile, the world hus never heard of anybody else that is. Yet, rob Him of all that makes Him a Saviour to this poor race.

The publication of extracts from the Mayor's speech brought forth the following telegram from Mr. Gould:

New York, March 5, 1907.

Alfred B. Williams, Editor The News Leader, Richmond, Va.:

I did not know until I read your Mayor's speech that the city of Richmond desired to acquire Belle Isle. Now that I have read this, and if the public of Richmond really desires to own the property. I hereby offer to accept a proposition to have it condemned in the usual manner and the value appraised by commissioners.

From this valuation I will deduct $25,000, to be paid by me personally and to be regarded as a gift from me to the city, without any purpose to put Richmond under obligation to me, but as an expression of my good will and warm regard for the city, of which I am sincerely fond.

who is thoroughly familiar with the river and the various water-power rights, was out of the city.

The Mayor pointed out that the offer and the comments in the afternoon papers were a perfect vindication of his own views. He further said that he would fully approve of the city's owning the island if it could be secured at a reasonable rate. "No one hears anything more about the much-exploited steel plant on the island, on which the Goulds claim to have expended a half million dollars. The city does not need the steel plant, nor does it need any one's consent to undertaking condemnation proceedings, if the island is needed for city purposes. The liberality of Mr. Gould's offer to deduct $25,000 from the commissioners' appraisement of the island will depend very largely on what the commissioners may think of the value of non-paying steel industries."

The Mayor called attention to the press reports that the Manchester City Council was now in favor of establishing a municipal electric light plant. The city of Manchester some years ago sold its canai, which is now controlled by the Gould interests, and it is said that it would now be girld to repurchase it at several times the selling price.

HEALTH WORK IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

City Health Officer Makes Practical Address to Corps of Teachers.

IMPORTANCE OF SANITATION

Speaker Shows That Public Schools Are Important Factor In Health Problem.

Dr. E. C. Levy spoke before the public school teachers of the city Tuesday night at Central School on the importance of inculcating proper ideas of health and sanitation in the minds of school children.

Dr. Levy called attention to the fact that a few years ago a medical papyrus was discovered, known as the Eber's papyrus, which dealt with medical science of a period several thousand years before Christ, A translation of the paper has been published in a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The paper gives a list of the things that the Egyptians knew about medicine, show-Egyptians knew about medicine, showing that in many respects they recognized the same things that we know now. Their list of subjects seems almost like a modern medical text-book, until one comes to hygicite and sanitation, in which subjects their ideas were fantastic and absurd.

Continuing, Dr. Levy said that the Continuing. Dr. Levy said that the modern science of sanitation began about twenty-five years ago, and has now outstripped curative methods, showing that the methods of the future will be preventive rather than curative.

"The profession knows enough about preventive medicine now to revolutionize conditions, but it is difficult to put the knowledge into practice owing to lack of support of governing bodies."

Dr. Levy then called attention to three points that made the public schools important factors in the problem of health.

First—Anything which brings together a large collection of individuals at a susceptible age presents its dangers and its problems. The speaker called attention of contagious diseases as elements of the school-health problem.

Second—How the schools may help. "There are in Richmond about 13,690 young people, one-seventh of the population, who are under observation and control, and in whom inciplent disease can be detected." The speaker called attention to eya, ear and throat troubles, malnutrition and the necessity of a more efficient medical school inspection. The School Board can enforce measures of sanitation and control that cannot be maintained in any other way.

Third—The schools can assist in public health in teaching proper and correct knowledge of the human body, and

The speaker closed with a vigorous protest against some of the text-books on hygiene now in use in the schools.
